THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

Our readers have by this time had an opportunity of perusing the late and last message of Gov. Graham. It may be expected that we, in common with our cotemporaries, should say what we think of this document Well, then, we would simply remark, that Gov. Graham, according to our understanding, very clearly proves that the State is deeply embarrassed in her financial affairs, and he thinks it is proper that the Legislature should adopt some method to relieve the State from her present unfortunate situation, by the issue of State bonds or otherwise. The message recommends a liberal system of Internal Improvements by the State; and in consideration that the State is now sole owner of the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road, he urges the con- no small amount of stir with the Whig party struction of a Road from Raleigh to Charlotte, at the North. We publish the letter as mathalf of the stock. We are not surprised to duped in the election of Gen. Taylor, and we strenuously, when it is a well known fact uation as the South. In fact, we would raththat the State is now the owner of the Gaston | er prefer it. We copy the letter from the Bal-Road at a much larger price than the State timore Sun of the 1st instant:could have obtained it for. He doubtless feels sore about the matter, and with a view of getting the State out of the unfortunate position in which he has placed her, he recommends the building of the Road from Raleigh to Charlotte. But at the same time he entirely overlooks the interest of the State in another direction; and amongst all his preent appeals for ham and myself one side yesterday, and told tion; and amongst all his urgent appeals for the Road to Charlotte, he thinks that "too much should not be undertaken at once; but what may be attempted should be thoroughly tories, the old gentleman distinctly and earcompleted." We fully agree with the message in this latter particular, and we would respectfully make the inquiry, how it is that | the scabbard." it has so happened that another great interest | About this, Boyd says there is no mistake, of the State has been so wantonly lost sight and he does not hesitate to pronounce "Old of? The latter Road, Gov. Graham, it the slave States on the Free Soil question. * seems, desires to convey the impression, is of but little consideration to the State. Now, we think, and we believe we are not alone in so thinking, that if the State is disposed to do anything for Rail Roads, a helping hand should first be extended to that work in which the State is most deeply interested, and most likely to receive benefit from, and place the same in such a situation as may, in all human probability, eventually secure to the State the money which she has expended in the project. We allude to the Wilmington & Raleigh Rail Road, and the building of the Wilmington and Manchester Road. The Gaston Road is evivery great expense, which must nearly, if not all, fall upon the State. With a little aid from vernor has entirely overlooked this important The State is more interested in the welfare of the Wilmington and Raleigh Road minion, and we think it is her duty to do something for the Road, if it can be made to appear that by so doing the State is to be benefited State's having anything to do with Rail Roads, and would only recommend it (where individual means are entirely unable to effect it,) as a remedy to check the emigration of our people to more improved States or to better lands and then merely recommend aid by the State to individual enterprise. We think we have had experience enough in this matter to convince any intelligent person that such works are managed better by individuals than they are in the habit of being managed by States. But we are for saving all we can, and would, under the circumstances, be willing, as the KEARNEY, just before his death, a conciliatory State is a stockholder in the Wilmington and message, by the hand of Mrs. FREMONT. RED TERRITORY.

A correspondent of the New Orleans Delta, writing from Mexico on the 31st of October, "We hear a great deal of talk here about mense value. At first, we set down much to the natural exaggeration of a gold fever; and when Lieut. Beall, of the Navy, passed thro' here, as bearer of dispatches from the Pacific Squadron, we received even his statements to them, the impoverishment of honest renumber of private letters have lately arrived to the hands of English and other merchants, which leave no longer ground for doubt. The translation of the leading editorial in Spanish, the substance of which is as follows :- A few months ago, it says, we were in the habit of triumphs-if he stands speaking of the agricultural and commercial resources of California as the spring of its greatest wealth; and although to-day they are world, Agriculture constitutes a very small portion of it, because every interest has become time last Spring, Messrs. Marshall and Bennett, when opening a ditch to make some work in a mill which they had built on a bend of the Sacramento, found gold which the current and not till then, we shall be able to judge had deposited under it, and after examining, whether Gen. Taylor is a hero morally as found it to be pure. Immediately this began to attract the attention of the neighbors. They soon discovered gold in such quantities towards the middle of the river, and also some distance above the mill, that several persons who had before given but little credit to rumors, abandoned their homes and went to work in the mines. In a few weeks almost all the population turned out to gather gold. The result was, that in less than four months a total revolution was effected in the prospects and fate of Upper California. Formerly, capital was in commercial and other speculations; but now, labor prevails over capital, and the laborers have in their hands the great mass of the wealth of the country. There are about 4000 whites, and a few Indians, who have engaged in the labor of the mines. The city of San Francisco, which then contained a population of two thousand souls, is entirely deserted-only twelve or fifteen persons remaining there. In a part of the mine called the dry excavation,' no other instrument is needed than a strong butcher's knife to dig the gold from the rocks. In other places, as in Georgia and North Carolina, the machinery is very simple for collecting and separating it. The greatest number, however, use nothing but an Indian basket, in which they place the mud and shake it until the cold settles down to the bottom, and the dirt passes out through the sides in the form of muddy water. As to the wealth of the mine, says the writer, if we were to believe the half of what is said, it would be considered in other regions as the story of Sinbad the Sailor; or the history of Alladin's lamp, which only requires its possessor to wish a thing to see the desire satisfied. Many persons have collected in one day, in gold of the purest kind, from three hundred to eight hundred dollars; and for many days together, at from seventy-five to one hundred and fifty dollars a day. Although this is not The following is the translation of the general, the mean proportion is so well determined, that when a man does not collect, with facility, thirty or forty dollars a day, he moves with his basket to another place. But as many of those who labor are children, women, and ignorant Indians, the average of all the laborers ought to be set down at considerably less. I would, however, be safe to say that, taking

HOTCHKISS' Vertical Water Wheel.

IN consequence of the very great popularity which these Wheels have attained by the use of learly four thousand of them in different parts of the country, the subscribers have sold about 100 Rights in North Carolina, 30 of which are in full and successful operation in Cumberland county, When properly introduced, they nearly double the value of the Mill, and in quantity of work, generally, far exceed the most sanguine expectations of the owners, many of whom are gentlemen distinguished for their science and practical skill, who have attested to the value of this improvement. The Wheels are more durable, and more easily kept in order, when properly put together, than the common Flutter Wheel. They will save one-third of the water, and run well in back water when there is a head above. The speed of the saw is increased to more than double the strokes

The price of an individual right, for one pair of Wheels, is $50. We refer, among others, to the following gentlemen, some of whom have had the Wheels in operation 12 months or more, and from many of whom we have received certificates highly approving of these Wheels, and stating that their saws, with this improvement, cut 2500 feet a day, according to the head of water. FAYETTEVILLE. Grahum.
